

Abstract

Research for effective management of occupational health manager and system in workplace

Objective: The occupational health manager were established based on manufacturing industry. But, industrial field of non-manufacturing accident has been increased and new occupational unhealthy factors confirmed. Thus, we need to investigation of effective management of occupational health manager and system in workplace.

Methods: We performed literature review about occupational health manager and system, and analyzed current guideline and policy for health management system in workplace. We held conference for specialist and expert of occupational health system for gathering each opinions.

Results: We proposed expansion of duty for employment of occupational health manager to finance and insurance business. We revised standard for employment of occupational health manager from occupational category and size of enterprise to managing time for workers. Engineer ergonomics has been acquired qualification for occupational health manager, newly. And we suggested effective application planing for human power and equipment on specialized organization of occupational health management.

Conclusions: The results of present study suggested that effective regulation planing of occupational health manager was help for workers' health.

Key words : occupational health manager, cost-benefit, application planing